AUTHOR AND PERFORMER OF TWO WORKS OF SOLO THEATER (video trailers at website)

Jews, God, and History (Not Necessarily in That Order)

Produced May-June 2022, The Sigg Theater at The Flea, New York City

Directed by Tony nominee Brian Lane Green

In two acts of comedy and drama, Jews, God, and History looks at how modern humans live with ancient traditions. This show explores the big questions asked by people of all origins and beliefs: about God, faith, reason, heritage, tribe, morality.

REVIEWS:

Theater Scene

One punch to the gut after another.... Takiff is a skilled performer who never loses the audience no matter how angry or sardonic he gets.

Director Talk

Writer and performer Michael Takiff melds his prodigious intelligence and expert showmanship to illuminate the darkest (and most tender) moments in the life and mind of the modern American Jew.... Takiff's brilliant one-man show answers the question What is a Jew? in an entirely new, but deeply ancient, way.

Off Off Online

Can an atheist serve as a guide to the history, customs, and longevity of the Jewish religion and its adherents? Moreover, how can an atheist recognize that a man who has just died is with God? ... Jews, God, and History (Not Necessarily in That Order) is a roller-coaster ride through Jewish belief, identity, and practice.

Hi! Drama

Highly amusing and gets deadly serious in the second act when he talks about the Holocaust and his father's death.... It ends with the circumstances surrounding the death of his father which was so touching it had me weeping. This show has the whole megillah: Laughter and tears.

Black Tie: A Son's Journey through the Death and Life of His Father

Directed by Tony nominee Brian Lane Green

In this two-act family memoir, I investigate the life of my father, an ordinary man, and uncover a hero—for his diligence in serving his family day in and day out, for his courage in serving his country during World War II.

REVIEWS:

Director Talk

A rare mix of sharp intelligence and deep feeling, Filled with vital insights into a man's unending love for a difficult dad.

Jimmy Roberts, Composer of Off Broadway's long-running I Love You, You're Perfect, Now Change

Michael Takiff has a story to tell: a father, a son, a family; a country in depression, war, and peace. It's his story, yet it's everyone's story—coming to terms with loss as we find our way forward in life. He imbues small moments with humor and significance, and all we can do is watch, riveted in our seats.

J.B.

Full of wonderful energy, intelligence, irony, and feeling. Black Tie made me think and remember.

F.B.

Deep and funny and performed with authenticity—it's not just that Michael Takiff is a pro—he's an artist.
